Welcome

The Institute for Diplomacy and International Governance offers four different master's programmes that keep pace with the changing realities of today's world. We develop tools to grasp these facts of international life, and to prepare our students for careers across many professions.

From questions of international business, trade and management to the matter of the UK's global role, we address the pressing contemporary issues of today's and tomorrow's world.

Our programmes are designed to expose you to many different aspects of contemporary diplomacy and international governance. Experts from academia, government and industry will share their insights (and secrets, in some cases) to guide and support your own discoveries and learning.

You will work collaboratively with academic staff and each other to enrich your studies, and will have the opportunity to become experts in topical issues such as the repercussions of the UK's exit from the EU.

I hope to welcome you into our postgraduate research community soon.

Best regards,

Professor Helen Drake

🎓 An hours degree (2:1 or above) or equivalent overseas qualification
IELTS: overall 6.5 with minimum 6.0 in each component.

Academics from the Institute for Diplomacy and International Governance offer research expertise and experience in a wide range of subject areas. They are extremely well-networked with professionals outside of academia in their respective fields.

In some cases, the Institute can provide joint supervisory arrangements with colleagues from other Loughborough University London institutes and from departments at Loughborough University's East Midlands campus.

The Institute currently leads research into the following areas. These are not exclusive and we encourage potential candidates to contact us for discussion before submitting an application:

- The European Union (including its institutions; member state domestic politics; EU-Russia relations; the EU as a foreign policy actor; Brexit and its effect on the UK, the rest of the EU)
- The UK and transatlantic relations, especially their security dimensions
- Political representation and participation of minority and marginalised communities, particularly Roma and LGBTIQ communities
- Critical and normative approaches to diplomacy
- International political communication and diplomatic discourse
- Russia-West relations
- London and other global cities

Risk, Governance and International Management MSc

- £ £14,500 (UK/EU), £26,300 (International)*
- 🕒 1 year full-time, up to 4 years part-time
- 🎓 2:2 (55% or above) or equivalent overseas qualification.
IELTS: overall 6.5 with minimum 6.0 in each component.

This programme

Our Risk, Governance and International Management MSc represents a joint degree from the Institute for Diplomacy and International Governance and the Institute for International Management.

You will develop a comprehensive understanding of the strategies used by multinational companies and other organisations to manage risks arising from their environment.

You will acquire the increasingly valuable knowledge and skills required to identify, evaluate and respond to risks facing multinational organisations of various kinds, operating in a rapidly changing global context.

Students examine how such organisations navigate opportunities and challenges arising from changes in international economic governance, foreign policy and international politics and diplomacy.

Whether your goal is to lead your own global business or other enterprise, or support the success of an existing organisation, you will be encouraged to make the most of the campus' iconic location to build professional relationships with organisations in London that interest you the most.

This programme is suited to those with an interest in international management and international governance with a focus on the increasingly important question of risk, emanating from a multinational organisation's social, natural, political and regulatory environment.
